DR. HEADY PASSES

While more than a thousand friends of the deceased stood by his bier in final parting, funeral services for the late Dr. James M. Heady were held Wednesday in the W. O. W. Hall in Oakland.

Dr. Heady's sudden death (as a result of an automobile accident last Saturday morning) came as a great shock to his many friends, especially in the Townsend Clubs of which movement he was a leading figure.

Personally, we mourn the loss of Dr. Heady as a good friend whose wide experience and versatility combined with an ultra-optimistic disposition to bring gladness into the hearts of those with whom he came in contact.

Hail and farewell, Doctor Heady. The world has lost by your departure.

EAGLES CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Fraternal Order of Eagles will hold their Christmas party on December 23. Members and families are invited. President Max Jodda presided at last night's meeting.

THE BEST LAUGH OF THE WEEK

"BATTLE IN THE MORGUE"

To H. L. Mencken, noted writer goes this year's premium for descriptive brevity: Referring to the current Alf. Landon-Herb Hoover fight for control of the almost defunct Republican organization, Mencken called it—the "Battle in the Morgue."

MUSIC

MAENNERCHOR SCORES

Largest crowd in several years of Richmond Maennerchor history occurred last Saturday night at Winters Hall when the local German-American singing society presented "Eine Nacht in den Alpen" (A Night in the Alps.)

HP of the evening was the colorful Swiss Alpenroesli which delighted with their songs and yodels. San Francisco Maennerchor, as usual, delighted with the rendition of their selections. And the Richmond Maennerchor held up to its fine standard in its part of the program, particularly the soloists: Emil Heidorn on the zither, and Ellsworth Walston, a rising young baritone.

LABOR

PG&E VOTES THIS WEEK

FORD PLANT TO OPEN

Best news for many months to Richmond employees of the Ford Motor plant here as well as to the merchants and people generally, is the glad news that the maintenance crew has been called to work and that the plant may be in full operation by Christmas.

The company has issued the statement that the men will be called as needed, by telephone.

VETERANS

ZAMLOCH MAGIC

Last night at Richmond Post No. 10's (American Legion) meeting, entertainer extraordinary was Carl Zamloch, who is one of the country's outstanding conjurers. He presented an astounding variety of card tricks and other legerdemain which pleased the large membership that was present.

Commander Carl Stender conducted the meeting at which many active committee reports showed the Legion carrying out its comprehensive program.

Past Commander John B. "Barney" Kinstrey was re-nominated to retain his place on the Board of Hall Directors.

A fine feed of tamales and beer was offered by a local firm which has for years been a great friend of the Legion. not fail to see it!

ART

RICHMOND ART EXHIBIT

The exhibit held at Lincoln School auditorium on Wednesday night was truly gratifying to art lovers of this city. A steady stream of enthusiasts crowded the exhibit.

Offerings covered a wide scope, all the way from dinner table set pieces, artistic linens, etc., to some very fine paintings landscapes and marines, and also some portraits.

The water colors of Mrs. Ramona Germeshauser, in the freshness of color and composition conception, were especially delightful, as were those of Mrs. Vloberg and Mrs. Maude Sykes.

Space does not permit a complete review of the exhibit; to say naught of our inability to judge all the presentations adequately. But Richmond may well be proud of our resident artists.

Saturday Night in Japan

"COME on in, the water's fine." Bathing in Japan is on a different plane from ours as these two American gentlemen can tell you. Tubs are perpendicular there, instead of horizontal, and you stand in the water up to your neck. But we shouldn't laugh at this somewhat primitive scene, according to Consumers Information, which points out that only a hundred years ago, there were only 1,500 bathtubs in the United States, all of them in Philadelphia, where they had a city water system and taxed each tub $3.00. President Fillmore installed the first tub in the White House in 1850. Advertising of the advantages of convenient and sanitary bathing started 31 years later, has continued increasingly ever since, and has made the United States the cleanest nation on earth. Even the most advanced European nations are far behind us in this respect, and the possession of a bathtub in most countries is a sign not only of opulence but ostentation. The United States is among the few countries generally educated to the knowledge that health and cleanliness go together.

CITY GOVERNMENT

COUNCIL MEETINGS

It was the pleasure of this writer to take in two separate council meetings last Monday night. One at Richmond, the other at El Cerrito.

Quite different is the procedure at the two meetings. As is well known, in Richmond, by the time the council has got through with their "star chamber" session" they are so worn out with talking that they are too tired to do anything more than OK the department reports or authorize an occasional street lamp or a fire plug. And that takes all of ten minutes or so for them to earn their 50 bucks per month. It was that way Monday night in Richmond. But in El Cerrito—

Down there the city dads buy everything from a sheet of carbon paper to a bathtub, collect the $2,000 license fee from the dog track. No chance for a "star chamber" session there because each councilman is a commissioner of a department. And no amount of executive or secret sessions could smooth over any such ruffled councilman when his department is asked to make concessions. A half hour's "star chamber" down there would be just a warm-up for the open session.

A case in point: last Monday night there was some discussion of the purchase of a motor truck for the street department. All were agreed that Councilman Beck's deparment needed the equipment, wanted to buy it, yet when Mayor Huber moved to allow Beck to buy it, no one would second the motion. Somewhat explanatory, shortly afterward was Councilman Larson's request that a police patrol car be purchased for his department and that also failed for the want of a second. We have no doubt, however, that the Cerrito council will prove itself equal to the need of some high class "hoss trading" and that ultimately both cars will be purchased.

Mayor Huber sounded a fine note when he remarked that he understood that one city employee in the street deparment, earning $8.00 per day also had a police job at the dog track for $5.00 per day. Judge Huber felt that the work should be divided so that one man would not have two jobs. Somebody suggested that Councilman Larson might know whether the man had a job at the dog track or not; but Councilman Larson made it clear that he never goes to the dog track.

THEATRE

ELK'S CHARITY SHOW

In spite of very inclement weather a large audience greeted th Annual Charity Show of th BPOE at the RUHSchool auditorium last night.

Directed by Howrd Milholland was the minstrels first part in which the Elk's Glee Club took a leading part. The musical travesty, "Merry Widower" was the second half of the show and Frank Tiller, Ed Dale, Charlie Drake, E. G. Harkey, Dr. L. H. Fraser, W. R. McNily, Al Furrer, Bart Viano, Harold Higton, and James G. Clark did their stuff just right.

Tonight is the final show. Do

Witty Dr. Holmes

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, the famous essayist, author and physician, father of the late justice, met a man who had devoted himself to lecturing throughout New England, without much ability for the task. In other words, he was much of a bore. "What are you about now?" asked Dr. Holmes. The answer was, "Oh, lecturing as usual. I speak at Dedham this evening." "Good," said Holmes, "I'm delighted to hear it. I never liked those Dedham people."

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife; take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

BEDTIME STORY

BUSTER BEAR MAKES A REQUEST

BUSTER BEAR shook with laughter as he watched Reddy Fox disappear just like a little red streak. It had been great fun to give Reddy such a scare.

"I guess he won't come fooling around here again in a hurry," chuckled Buster.

"I guess he won't," chuckled Jumper the Hare. "I'm ever and ever so much obliged to you, Buster Bear. I—I'd like to do something for you to make up for it. Do you think I can do anything for you? I don't know how I can, because I'm so small and you are so big and strong. But I'd like to do something. I would, ever so much."

Buster scratched his head thoughtfully and there was a twinkle of fun in his shrewd little eyes as he looked down at Jumper. It struck him very funny that anyone so much smaller than he and so very, very timid really might be able to help him, but he was too shrewd to look down on anyone because they were smaller and weaker than he. He learned a long time ago not to despise anyone just because they are not big and strong. So he scratched his head and his eyes twinkled as he tried to think of some way in which Jumper the Hare could repay him for giving Reddy Fox such a fright. You see, it really had been a very great favor to Jumper, because Reddy Fox was hunting him. Now Reddy had had such a scare that he would not venture back there again very soon.

"You might let me know if you discover any danger for me in the Green Forest," said Buster thoughtfully.

Jumper looked at him as if he didn't know whether to think Buster was joking or not. Somehow Buster looked as if he meant it.

"I—I'll be very glad to," replied Jumper, "only I don't know what danger there can be for you. You are so big and strong and have such great teeth and claws that I—why, I don't see what there is for you to be afraid of, Buster!"

Buster looked as if he didn't know just what to say. No one ever likes to admit being afraid of anything. "Does—does a man ever visit the Green Forest?" asked Buster in a hesitating way.

"Farmer Brown's boy does sometimes, but nobody is much afraid of him any more," replied Jumper promptly. "He was very nice to Chatterer the Red Squirrel and to Mrs. Grouse and to Peter Rabbit this last winter, and everybody knows it. Besides, you are as big as he is and a whole lot stronger. Of course, you wouldn't be afraid of him, Buster!"

"N-o-o, no, of course not!" replied Buster. "Did you say he carries a dreadful gun?"

"He used to, but he doesn't very much now excepting when he hunts for Granny Fox or Reddy Fox," said Jumper.

"He might if he knew that I were here," replied Buster, "so I guess if you'll let me know when he is anywhere around I'll just keep out of sight. You know I wouldn't want to frighten him." Buster looked up at Sammy Jay and winked as he said this, and Sammy chuckled. "If you really want to do something for me," continued Buster, "you can try to find out for me where there is some honey. I want some honey. I'm almost starved for some honey." Buster put both paws on his stomach and looked so forlorn that Jumper had to laugh. "Don't laugh," said Buster. "Just think, I haven't had a taste of honey since last fall! If you hear of any anywhere, please hurry to let me know. Will you, Jumper?"

"You Might Let Me Know If You Discover Any Danger for Me in the Green Forest," Said Buster Thoughtfully.

Jumper promised that he would, though how he was going to find out where there was any honey was more than he could guess. But he was willing to try, for he felt grateful to Buster Bear for frightening away Reddy Fox.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

BOILER INSULATION

SOME years ago I bought a new boiler for my steam heating system. The sides and top were covered with enameled sheet metal, and the whole thing was very attractive in appearance. But the outside surfaces were hot to the touch, and the cellar was distinctly warm. This radiation of heat by the boiler was pure waste. I did not need heat in my cellar, and the heating of that space meant that less of the heat of the fire was available for the warming of the upstairs rooms.

After two seasons, I took off the sheet metal surfaces, and found thicknesses of asbestos board underneath. There were openings between the sheets and behind them. This gave plenty of space for circulation of air underneath the sheet metal, and was largely responsible for the wastage.

All of the insulation was taken out to the bare metal. The unevenness of the metal surface was filled with a cement intended for high temperatures; cement made of rock wool was used, although asbestos cement would have been just as effective. The boiler was then covered with an inch-and-a-half of good insulating material, a layer of cement was put on top and covered with heavy muslin. When the insulation had dried out, the job was finished with aluminum paint. Now, even when the fire is going full blast, the outside is only faintly warm to the touch. Fuel is being burned far more efficiently; a larger portion of the heat is passing to the upstairs rooms.

Several kinds of insulation are available for such a job; magnesia blocks or rock wool blocks are especially effective.

As a general thing, it is best to have boiler insulation applied by a specialist. But I have seen a number of home talent jobs that were excellent. One in particular, began with the filling of all inequalities with so-called "high temperature" cement. High rib metal lath was then stretched around the boiler, with the ribs inward, to form a dead-air space. Pads of rock wool were bound against the lath with wires, and the surface covered with a layer of high temperature cement finished with muslin and aluminum paint.

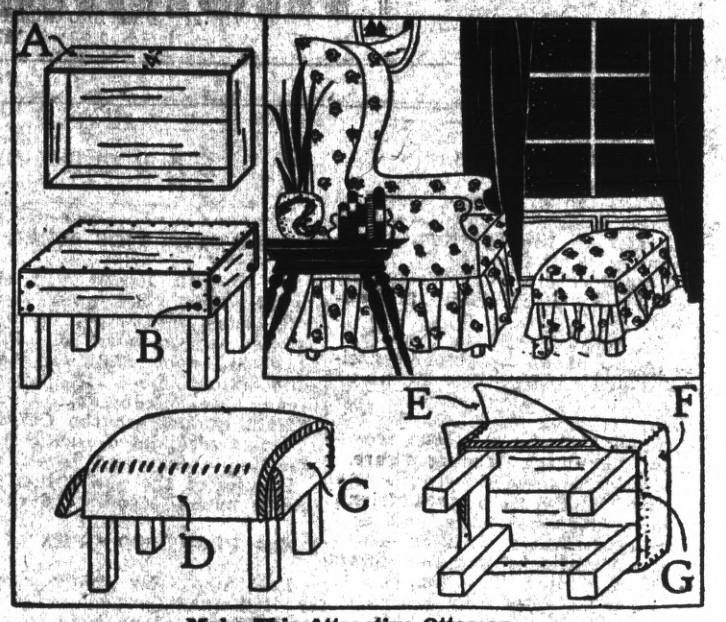
HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears



Make This Attractive Ottoman.

GET a wooden box from the grocer. It should be about as long as the width of the chair with which the ottoman is to be used. The depth of the sides should be four inches as shown here at A.

The legs should be made of two by two's or you may have a set of nicely turned legs from an old table or other piece of furniture that may be cut down to the right length. Fasten in place with long screws through the corners of the box as shown here at B.

About half a bat of cotton will be needed. Put five or six layers of the cotton on the top, cutting the first layer about four inches smaller all around than the top of the box. Place it in the center. Cut the next layer a little bigger and the others still bigger until the last one is the same size as the top. Now, cut a layer of cotton to go over the top and down over the ends as at C and another to go over the top and down the sides as at D.

Cut a piece of heavy muslin to fasten tightly over the cotton. Cut the corners of the muslin as at E. Sew with heavy thread as at F and then tack as at G.

To make the cover, stretch the top tightly over the muslin and sew it along the sides through the muslin, then make a straight four-inch band to go all around and add the ruffle to it.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful users the country over. Ask your neighbor!

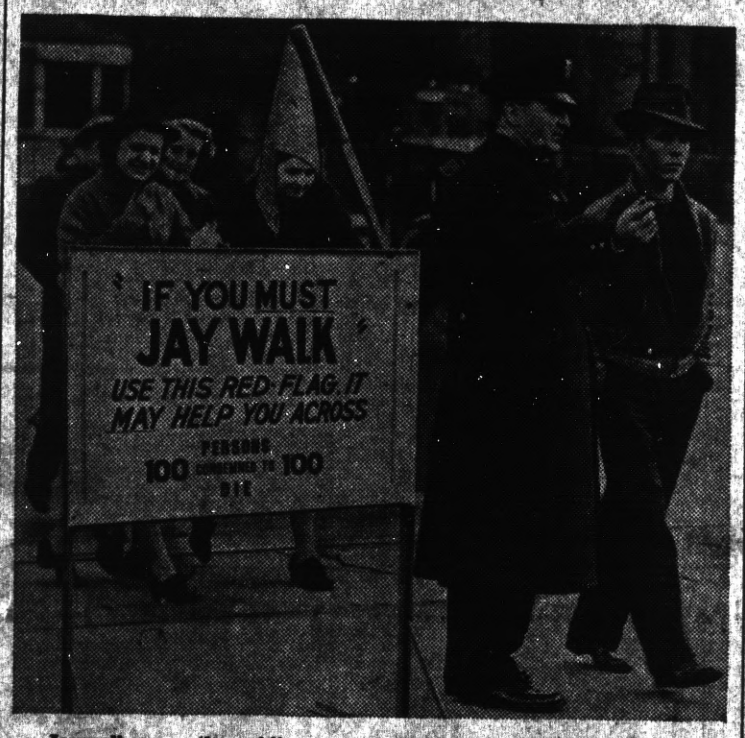
Hopkins Explains Relief Problems

Big City Mayors Predict Heavy Winter Burden

Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, as he addressed the recent mayors' conference at Boston, Mass. His subject was "The National Program." Mayors from leading cities throughout the United States were in attendance. Their verdict was that the relief burden in big cities would be increased rather than lowered this winter. Fiorello LaGuardia, newly re-elected as mayor of New York, was one of the principal speakers at the session, as were Mayors Edward J. Kelly of Chicago and Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee.

Here's Safe Way to Jaywalk



Jaywalkers on the public square in Cleveland were politely reminded by police that using a red flag placed there for their convenience "might" help them in darting across the streets when the traffic lights were against them. It was all part of a traffic safety campaign to reduce the number of motor fatalities that have been mounting rapidly.

GASSING 'EM UP

The hands that used to pump them down the alley in the baseball season, now serve Dizzy Dean in getting the "go fluid" down the tanks of cars that pull up at his filling station at Bradenton, Fla., where the Cardinals have established their training camp. The colorful pitcher, it seems, has got wise to himself because he's selling gas in liquid form now, where formerly he dispensed quite freely of the airy variety.

"THEME SONG" DRESS

The deep yoke-shirring of this little "theme song" dress, extending all the way to the waist, is decidedly "tops" in style for the very young miss, this season. Small puffed sleeves complete the quaint picture. And newer than new is the fabric itself, designed to interpret a familiar song, to the delight of young wearers. "Daisy, Daisy, tell me your answer true" is the song from which this particular design drew inspiration.

Pekingese Originated in Orient

In spite of the fact that its name brands the Pekingese as a Chinese breed, few persons, with the exception of fanciers, think of the little fellows as having actually originated in the Orient. However, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times, the Pekingese shares with the chows the honor of being the national dogs of China. It is claimed that the first of the Pekes brought to England in 1860 came from within the walls of the Sacred City, but since then, most of them have been exported from points between Peking and the sea, where in nearly all towns they are bred extensively.

The Nuthatch

The nuthatch is a slate-colored bird whose unusual shaped head gives him a "snoopy" appearance. His travels are from the top of the trunk, head down, to the base of a tree, finding his food in the upper crevices of the bark. He also gives his attention to the heavier branches, scanning topside and underside, creeping around in most surprising fashion.

Brushing the Teeth

In 1777, one year after the outbreak of the American revolution, the social revolution of brushing teeth was introduced in France. It was introduced at the court of Versailles by an English doctor. It met numerous enemies. Some diners kept their teeth healthy by picking up a chop joint and gnawing away at the bone.

New Orleans' Waterfront

The Mississippi waterfront of New Orleans is almost a continuous wharf, receiving about twenty million bunches of bananas a year, coffee, mahogany, molasses and jute for bailing cotton. Cotton is shipped in large quantities and the city is one of the leading market places for the fiber.

THE CAULIFLOWER COLYUM
By Frankie Neil
Former Bantamweight Champion of the World

Now that I had become the bantamweight champion of the world every sportsman who had seen me turned out to be a friend and entertainer. They took me here and they took me there—theatres, dinner parties, buggy rides, to their homes—boy, was I "some punkins?"

Little more than a baby, up until a short time before I had been working on the San Francisco Examiner as a linotype apprentice machinist. But now, no more work for me! I was too important. I took orders from no one except my Dad and he gave me very few commands, which, of course, I always obeyed.

After the championship bout it was a continual round of pleasure, dancing, theatres, parties, and I naturally slept late in the morning. Up at eleven and then to horry over to the race track in Emeryville. Pretty much the same pro,edurt each and every day. Not much drinking for fe. I don't believe I had one glass of beer—only a littlt champagne or claret. We always had it at home and never abused it—us kids drinking as Dad's guests. He was a wondtrful man of whom I shall always be proud.

While at the race track I met all the disinguished figures of the sporting world who happened to be there and they were nearly all there. Actors huch as David Warfield, Barney Bernard, Kolb & Dill, Herschial Mayuel, the famous tragedian, many others. And, of course, all the big pugilists of the day—Corbett, McGovern, Young Corbett, Kid Carter, George Gardner and just a few millionaires. All of them, "Hello, Champ," or "Ha'i, Frankie," to me. And for a little while my hats began shrinking.

Finally, however, I got my wits to percolating and I said to myself, "What a fine lot of fellows! Here, a month ago, they hardly looked at me. Now, this. I wonder if they think I can't remember?"

However, I wan to make one thing clear.Most of those friends who are still alive are yet my friends. And I shall always remember the wonderful ovation I received, several years ago, when I boxed in San Francisco for the Old Timers benefit.

I can say this much for San Francisco—the public, both the sports and the business men, are not the kind that quickly forget. They are the first to respond to a benefit of any sort, and very generously, too. The newspaper men are the very best and give a fellow a break wherever they can. There is only one San Francisco, my home town, and it cannot be beat.

Well, I have told you the reception the public gives a champion—now I will tell you of the reception a champion gives himself. The first thing a prize ring champ thinks of is buying himself a big diamond ring, a pin, and all the jewelry he can load on his person. Dad sent me down to Bullock & Jones, the fine San Francisco haberdashers, and they fit me out in all sorts of clothes, Tuxedos, walking suits, sporting clothes with the fancy vests. Dad sends back East to Kaskai and Kaskals and they sent their representative from the famous Baldwin Hotel to measure me for a dozen stirts. And did they cost a very pretty penny? I was just like unfl I hit London.

Bewitching Lace on Gala Nights

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

TO GIVE the glamour that every woman covets for gala nights, the answer throughout the centuries has been lace. And so it is to this very day and generation. Easily to be understood, therefore, is the fact of lace being made a theme triumphant throughout current Paris couture showings as well as in the fashion pageantry so dramatically presented nowadays by leading style creators in our country.

A most significant contemporary event that has much to do with the present enthusiasm for lace was the grand lace ball given in Chicago this fall. Not only did this delightful occasion usher in the winter social season with real fanfare and much excitement, but the lovely fashions there presented set the pace for a "lace season."

Three models that were outstanding in this style-registering lace promenade are pictured herewith, with the thought in mind that whether you can afford to buy original models or whether perforce you needs must make your own clothes, the fact of having the best set before you proves helpful and inspirational. The woman with limited budget has every opportunity to look beautifully gowned these days (no matter how formal the function to which she may be invited) at comparatively little cost.

The present mode that voices an insistent call for formal gowns is bringing out a number of distinctly new and charming silhouettes, not the least important of which is the one with smoothly molded front lines and fullness at the back. The beautiful dress to the right in the illustration interprets the idea with tiny ruffles starting from a deep decolletage and sweeping down fan-shape to a widened hemline. The decollete at front is heart-shaped. The trimming features are all centered at the back with a sashbow of the lace to give added grace. The lace is of filmy cobweb texture in one of the newest colors, a deep blue violet shade. The gown would be handsome done in black chantilly.

The season started with glitter and as time goes on the glitter-gleam-sparkle idea is gaining in momentum. The evening dress of silver lame lace on a white ground (center figure) does justice to the present scintillating mode. The gown is simply cut with a full skirt. The jacket of the same silver lace is detailed smartly to the nth degree with soft flaring cuffs at the elbow, and a little stiffened standup collar, plus bow. The jacket does not close completely so as to reveal the decollete gown underneath.

The two-piece dinner gown to the left, created by Norman Hartnell, London dress designer, is made of white starched lace in an interesting manner which shows up effectively over the slip of black satin. The high neckline in front contrasts a decollete back which, by the way, is a silhouette much featured this season. What fullness there is centers at the peplum-back of the blouse and the slight train. A wide girdle of rhinestones and brilliants completes the costume.

FAVOR HEAD VEILS FOR EVENING WEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A veil with your hat in the strictest sense is not news, although we must admit the ingenious ways they are being draped and flung picturesquely and nonchalantly about is worth telling about. However, that which is news, exciting news, is the veils sans hat which socialites are wearing as romantically as any senora or senorita ever draped a mantilla head and shoulder deep.

It is a charming fashion that has come to us this season, that of a decorative veil caught with flower or ornament thrown over a beautifully coiffed head. There is romance and allure in this new evening headdress, especially when the veil is filmy and sparkles with glittering sequins.

WHIMS OF FASHION

Pine cones are colored to make smart boutonnieres for suit lapels.

Sequins, paillettes and "bugles" are being used widely on evening gowns.

Heim specializes in peasant trims of Balkan inspiration in his current collection.

Many designers are using black fox for big luxurious collars or revers on coats.

Versions of the colonial or step-in pump for evening wear are noted in the new imports.

Black kidskin is dyed black to give it more luster and life, but all gray kids are kept gray.

Satin makes a number of smart blouses—simple styles for morning, long overblouses for afternoon.

Chenille caps are rivaling those of suede and contributing a dressier emphasis to youthful costumes.

At one of the oddest places in the world, on the shore of the Dead sea, a chemical plant has been built 1,300 feet below sea level.

In the greatest depression on the earth's surface, more than two miles lower than the rest of the world's seas, rests the Dead sea, a swamp-like body of water 47 miles long, 10 miles wide; five times more salty than the ocean and even poisonous to smell.

Into it tumbles the River Jordan, bearing mineral salts, such as bromides, potash, soda, valued at more than $100,000,000! There the Jordan is trapped. The Dead sea has no outlet. Its chemicals are left for man to gather.—Washington Post.

HARMONY OF BODY MIND AND SPIRIT

FOUNDATION GARMENTS

No matter how attractive or expensive your clothes they cannot hide ugly bulging lines . . flat or hollow chests . . large legs and ankles.

A trim figure is the first step in attractiveness. For no matter how becoming your hair dress or beautiful your face . . a figure which does not do your clothes justice quite overshadows your better features.

The foundation of a good figure (and we all can have one) is of course good health. Exercise, food and manner of living have most to do with this . . along with one's mental attitude which reflects itself in your every movement and gesture.

If you do not or will not give yourself the proper care . . then do at least give serious attention to your foundation garment.

Do not be satisfied with just any girdle, corset or foundation garment . . for just any garment will not improve your figure. It is well to make this purchase from a firm that takes individual measurements and of course stands behind the satisfaction its garment is guaranteed to give.

Do not buy a cheap garment even if you are the slimmest of the slim . . much less if your figure is matured or overweight.

A poor or ill-fitting garment is worse than none at all since it affects your carriage grace and movement . . pushes soft tissue where it does not belong with the result that more bulge is acquired. Muscles are pulled out of shape tending to break them down and cause them to lose their elasticity due to impaired freedom in using them.

We are agreed I believe that the proper foundation garment body and is a splendid foundation over which to show to advantage our clothes.

If you must economize let it be the dress. A simple inexpensive dress over a well-girdled or corsetted figure will give you in appearance what the most expensive and beautiful clothes cannot achieve over a poor foundation garment.

Having made this purchase, settled a mighty important factor in the attraciveness of your appearance the next step is color and becoming lines which will bring out your best points and minimize your less attractive ones.

Mrs. Carl Stender who has undergone a major operation at the Richmond Cottage Hospital now has returned home, much improved, and we are glad to state convalescing rapidly.

An Interesting Motorlogue

Miss Viola Trainor and Miss Katherine McCracken enjoyed a motor trip last week end journeyed through the Napa and Santa Rosa Valleys via Carquinez Bridge on Saturday morning. They visited the Oakville Ranch of the late D. P. Doak for whom Miss McCracken served as secretary for many years. They visited the famous Doak Marrion on the ranch which had been offered to President Coolidg for use as a summer home.

The grounds of this beautiful estate were designed by the late John McLaren. The mansion, which has the dimensions of a palace faces both the hills and the valley, is so beautifully designed and furnished as sumptuously as the White House in Washington, itself. It is literally lost in the trees as no sign of it can be seen from the highway. And unless one were familiar with its location it would, indeed, be hard to find.

The former Mrs. Doak, now Mrs. McGill, again a widow, lives in the palatial residence that was built for her by her husband. She greeted us cordially, and invited us to come again when the water lilies bloom, in an enormous pond as large as a small lake, artificially formed. It extends the entire length of the mansion and is reached by concrete steps in the manner of he famous steps in the front of the presidential mansion in Washington.

After this side trip the travellers visited towns in the upper valley, stopped over night, attended church on Sunday morning, crossed the mountains by the Petrified forest and Mark West Springs into Sonoma Valley and down to the San Rafael Ferry to return home to good old Point Richmond at 7 p. m.
